Great Josh Billings Run/ground Special Pul

THE GREAT JOSH BILLINGS RUN/GROUND SPECIAL PUL

Whether in the 19th or 20th century, the great outdoors has been a source of inspiration and challenge for many. In the 19th century, it was the rugged terrain of the Berkshires that inspired the great outdoorsman, Josh Billings. In the 20th century, it was the scenic beauty of the Berkshires that inspired the great outdoorsman, Josh Billings. In the 21st century, it is the great outdoors that inspire us to explore and discover the beauty of the Berkshires.

Although the run/ground special pul is a relatively new event, it has a rich history. It was first held in 1997, and since then it has grown in popularity. The run/ground special pul is a unique event that combines the best of both worlds: a run and a ground special pul. The run is a 5K or 10K, and the ground special pul is a fun and challenging activity that involves pulling a sled or a cart through a course. The run/ground special pul is a great way to enjoy the outdoors and get some exercise.

WHAT'S NEW, WHAT'S NEXT.

CRUISING THE DETROIT AUTO SHOW

By BOB KOCHER
GTW FEATURES

Hands down, Chevrolet had the biggest hit of last year's North American International Auto Show in Detroit: its sturdy remake of the classic Camaro. Challenged to top their 2006 victory this year, Chevy designers took things literally — they mimicked the Camaro's top.

A rugged prototype of the hot pony car made its official debut at the 2007 Detroit Auto Show in January. Company officials hint that, as with the coupe, the Camaro Cabriolet will soon find its way into Chevy showrooms nationwide.

After years of riding much of the car market to Asian competitors, Detroit's "Big Three" are rolling out an array of new models during the year's auto show that they hope will bring buyers back to dealer showrooms in search of something other than a truck. Here are some highlights.

General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. unveiled new versions of aging or unpopular models at the Detroit show. And DaimlerChrysler AG

Chrysler Group showed off a concept car that likely will be the replacement for the once hot-selling Chrysler 300.

The new models, most of which won't debut until next fall, are critical to the survival of their maker.

THE NEW MALIBU

Perhaps the most important new model is the 2008 Chevrolet Malibu, which many industry analysts predict will be good enough to take on the grilles of the important mid-sized segment Toyota Camry and Honda Accord.

The Malibu is one of the most important car launches in the history of GM," says Mike Jackson, GM's vice president for North American marketing and advertising. "We think it compares very favorably to Camry and Accord in a very competitive segment."

Analysis before a manufacturer can't survive without a strong mid-sized entry, where Chevrolet, GM's largest brand, has had ugly dips for years.

The new Malibu, so he built in Fairfax, Kan., is radically different from the current model, which is generally regarded as boxy and boring. The new Malibu has deep, elegant lines. Its front grille is tough-looking, the front fenders have been pushed out to the edge of the hood, giving the whole a wide stance. It's designed to take a chunk of the market from Camry, the perennial top-selling car in America.

The Malibu shows signs of GM returning to its roots, producing distinctly American cars that truck buyers' emotions rather than models that appear to be cheap imitations of Toyota and Honda.

NOLLYWOOD:

When I first read about Nigerian directors producing hundreds of feature-length films with digital cameras, a week, and a few thousand dollars, I found the subject irresistible. Here was not only a rare positive story about Africa, but one that embodied the egalitarian promise of digital technology—anybody can make a movie. And Nollywood was virtually unknown.

YOU'VE GOT TO SEE IT!

At Franklin Park Zoo, enter "Kalahari Kingdom", where lions rule, and watch zebras and antelope roam the grasslands of "Bongo Congo". See snow leopard pounce, or peek at prairie dogs as they poke their heads out of the ground in the Children's Zoo. Wander over to Bird's World, an emporium of exotic bird habitats. Or enter the Tropical Forest, a state-of-the-art indoor pavilion with hundreds of species, including warthogs, tapirs, pudgy hippos, manatees, gorillas, and hundreds of free-flying birds and bats. On the horizon: butterflies, wallabies, emus, kangaroos and cockatoos!

At Stone Zoo monkey around with spider monkeys, and find out whether raptors "really know how to fly". Or visit the Aviary, a one-acre tropical setting that features hundreds of free-flying birds. You'll flip for our flamingos, and have a "beary" good time with our bears. On the horizon: snow leopards and a mixed-species exhibit with Mexican grey wolves!
